Megan Huitema has passionately been involved in filmmaking since 2005, working in a range of roles including directing, writing, cinematography, lighting, sound, production design, clay animation, production management, and most strongly, producing. Megan completed work placements with the Australian International Documentary Conference and Smoking Gun Productions in 2009, where she learnt how the documentary marketplace operates and created a festival strategy for the feature film Lucky Country and the short film The Bully.

Megan has recently completed a Bachelor of Creative Arts (Screen Production) at Flinders University, where she received the 'Best Producer' Award for the short film Pleased to Meet You: Live with Sandra Faye in 2009 and for The Human Prism in 2008. Her fervour for success finds her continuously expanding her knowledge and skills through working on films both in and outside of study, producing five short films and a TVC in 2009 alone.

Earlier this year Megan undertook work experience as Production Assistant on the Australian/UK co-production feature film Oranges and Sunshine, where she enjoyed learning the intricacies of how the industry operates. Megan received the "Emerging Producer" award at the 2010 South Australian Screen Awards, and recently completed work on her second feature film, Red Dog, in the production office. Megan hopes to continue to produce her own work as well as assist on larger projects.
